Jen-min Shou-ts'c (People's Handbook), 1952.DIRECTORATE OF THE RED CROSS SOCIETY OF CHINA, 1950 - 1951

The Red Cross Society of China was reorganized on 8 September 1950 in Peiping. In accordance with the directive issued by the Government Administration Council and the decision adopted at the representative conference of the China People's Relief Association, the Ministry of Public Health and the various organizations of the Central People's Government and the people's organizations concerned with health and relief to reorganize the Red Cross Society of China and to set up its directorate. At this conference, the decision was made to establish the Red Cross Society within each level of the government as a people's health and relief organization and to place the main office of this society under the guidance of the Committee of Culture and Education and the Ministry of Public Health of the Central People's Government.

Since its establishment, the new directorate has already convened two plenary sessions to elect a chairman, the deputy chairmen, and the directors, as well as to make the necessary changes in the charter to conform with the principles enunciated by the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference.

In the past year, the Red Cross Society of China has made notable progress in its work. Under the KMT regime, the internal organization of this society was neither wholesome nor proper, as a result, medical and relief work of this society was greatly hampered. After the reorganization, the work of the society was greatly improved by setting in order the old branch associations. In the Resist America, Aid Korea Movement, this society mobilized 614 health personnel and organized seven Chinese Red Cross medical units for service on the Korean front.

The contributions made by the society in our national economic reconstruction program include: (1) establishment of a medical unit comprised of 298 health personnel for sanitation work among the workers of the Hwai Ho Water Conservancy Project as well as among the distressed inhabitants along this river; (2) establishment of a similar unit comprised of 195 health personnel for sanitation work among the aborigines in Hainan as well as in old liberated areas of Kiangai. In addition, this society has achieved good results in the care of women and children and in the training of relief personnel. It has also contributed greatly in promoting world peace movement and in maintaining international liaison.

Under the assistance of the Red Cross Society of the Soviet Union, a "Soviet Red Cross Hospital" has been established in Peiping.
